CAPT. PRICE ON TRIAL

Before the Commissioners Charged with Neglect of Duty.

the cusiness that was being done there it quickly ceased.

Supt. Byrnes found enough evidence to warrant a compolant, and on this evidence Capt. Price is placed on trial.

The trial excites unusual interest. There is a crowd in attendance, most of whom come through pure curiosity, while others have usen subpoensed as witnesses. Among the spectators are several friends of Alderman Parks.

Capt. Price was fined five days' pay on being found guilty of failing to suppress a disorderly house at 528 and 520 Seventh avenue, last March. He denied the house was of a disorderly character and declared his inability to get evidence to warrant a raid.

declared his inability to get evidence to warrant a raid.

Supt. Byrnes found no difficulty, however, in getting evidence. Detective Grady and another Central Office detective found evidence upon which a warrant for the arrest of the proprietor was issued, and the place was raided and closed. Commissioned MacLean voted for dismissal as the proper penalty, but the other three Commissioners, who had voted a whitewash on the previous trial, thought five days' pay a sufficient penalty.

There is considerable speculation as to the result of the present trial, and it is freely conjectured that should the verdict be "guilty" the penalty will be dismissal. There are others, however, who declare that it will be another whitewashing affair, or something very nearly approaching it.

Capt. Price has said that he will not affair, or something very nearly approaching it.

Capt. Price has said that he will not resign. He can afford to take the chances of a trial and dismissai, for he may soon retire under the twenty years' service law, on half pay, providing the Commissioners do not hasten his departure from the force. When that time comea he will be free to talk, and it is believed by many that he will talk out loud and very effectively if a chance is afforded.

it is believed by many that he will take out loud and very effectively if a chance is afforded.

If he is dismissed Capt, Price will be free to testify before the Lexow Committee. The Captain does not fear dismissed. He seems to feel that there are two horns to the dilemma, with a shock sither end for the Commissioners.

Leave to Louis Grant appeared as counsel for Capt. Price, and Lawyer Fred B. House, of Friend & House, was present to look after the interests of Alderman Parks, who was in the courtroom when the trial began.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Blandy appeared before the Commissioners and opened the proceedings by stating that he found himself considerably hampered by the fact that Florence J. Sullivan, upon whose affidavit the complaint was made, was not present, and although diligent efforts had been made to find him no trace of his whereabouts could be found.

The Commissioners decided that the case might be opened, and in the event of Sullivan's tallure to appear, an ad-

Supt. Byrnes was the first witness called. He testified that the first intimation he had of a gambling-house being conducted at 348 West Thirty-first street was the publication of the fact in a newspaper.

He wrote a letter to the publishers asking for evidence, and Sullivan called and made an affidavit on which the complaint was formulated and approved.
On cross-examination by Lawyer Grant, Supi. Byrnes testified that he had made no effort to either confirm or deny the charges made against Capt. Price. He referred the matter to Inspector McAvoy, who commanded the Captain to submit a reply in writing, which he did.
'On Monday, June 4. Capt. Price called upon me,' said Supt. Byrnes, "after having read the report in the newspapers he declared that he had been from the top to the bottom of the house at 36 West Thirty-first street and had found no indications of gambling having been conducted there. There was not a piece of gambling paraphernalia in the house." in the house."

On June 6 Sullivan made his affidavit, and Capt. Price reported thereon and was willing to stand or fall by the report.

Mr. Blandy said that Sullivan had not yet appeared, and called a process server to show that efforts had been made to get him. Lawyer Grant began to ask questions, and he and Mr. Blandy got into a heated discussion.

Mr. Sullivan finally appeared in the midst of this wrangle and testified that he was a newspaper reporter, and visited the house 345 West Thirty-first street on the night of June 1 at about 10.35 o'clock.

He was usbared to the sullivant was a newspaper of the sullivant of June 1 at about 10.35 o'clock.

"All I know is that he looked like a wreck and said he wanted money very badly."

Mr. Grant showed the witness a communication dated June 2. It was signed "Sincere Friend." and stated that the writer had overhaerd a conversation between Abe Hyman and a newspaper reporter the night before at Kelly's saloon, and that Hyman had boasted that he intended to have a place kept by Alderman Parks raided on Saturday night. The witness said that he could not account for the writing of the letter, as there was no one within hearing when he held his conversation.
"ou supposed you were getting the story exclusively?"

"Yes, I did at the time."
"Can you explain how "The Evening World" happened to publish the story with the complete expose the day before your story appeared?"
"No, I cannot."

Well, you believe Hyman was in hard luck and in it to make money, don't you."
"Yes, I guess he needed money."

"Yes, I guess he needed money,"
"Yes, I guess he needed money,"
"Don't you believe that he put up this job as a money-making scheme and that in reality here was no gambling-house there?"
"O. there was a gambling-house there, all right enough, Mr. Grant," replied the witness, who was then relinquished to Mr. Blandy for redirect examination.
"Do you believe?" asked Mr. Blandy, "that those things had just been placed there for the occasion?"
"Well, I can't say, becaus I don't know."

Commissioner Murray—Can you say whether the paraphernalia you saw were fixtures or tables that could easily be moved?
"I should say that they could be moved."

Com. Murray—"Did you make any inquiries in the neighborhood as to the character of the place?"

"No. sir; I did not."

"Then you didn't inquire whether the place was known as a gambling-house, and all you knew was what Hyman told you?"

"That's all I knew until after I visited the place."

"That's all I knew until after I visited the place."

Com. Murray—"Was there any one playing when you entered?"

No, but Meyers began as soon as I entered. He was a sort of copper—a half attache of the place, as it were."

Commissioner Martin asked several questions as to the difficuly in obtaining entrance. Then Mr. House, assisted by Mr. Grant, tried to tangle the witness, but they failed to shake the burden of his testimony. After they had finished the witness was excused, and Mr. Grant addressed the Commissioners.
